Fund Bid Approved By Faculty Senate

Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty senate Tuesday gave unanimous voice-vote approval to a resolution calling for support of Chancellor James Zumberger's proposal to seek a deficiency ap-propriation from the 1973 Legislature to help make up a current-year operating fund

The resolution was sponsored by English Prof. Paul Olson, who said he was acting on behalf of the American Federation of Teachers chapter at UNL.

Specifically, the resolution called for faculty senate support for Zumberge in his presentation to the office of the president and the Borad of Regents. Zumberge has announced he will recommend seeking a legislative appropriation to make up losses due to the impact of a new residency law.

Law is Blamed

Some $248,000 of a $927,000 projected deficit this year has been blamed on the impact of

NU President D. B. Varner said last month he was reluctant to go to the Legislature for a deficiency appropriation. He noted the university would have fewer alternatives to make up the loss if the Legislature rejected the request in the spring.

The senate vote came during a special meeting which began with Zumberge's explanation of the deficit and his proposed solution. Recommendations Aired

Zumberge said his recommendations, finalized after consultation with two major faculty committess, ruled out tuition increases, scholarship cutbacks, cuts in library services and acquisitions. faculty lay-offs and faculty salary reductions.

He said his office had "tried to spread the responsibility (for making up the losses from projected income levels) on as broad base as possible."

One faculty member suggested moving next semester to force students to pay tuition for the so-called free hours. The regents have already moved to end the free hours in the 1973-74 year

The hours are those between 13 and 16, for which no additional tuition is charged.

The alternative to charging students for those hours next semester, suggested Prof. Henry Baumgarten, is to "give students a lesser quality education."

He said the chemistry department will have more students and fewer resources due to the cutbacks.

Favorable Consideration

Zumberge assured him that those departments which needed funds to meet increased student loads would get favorable consideration. "It's not our intention to cut back in services offered students in the classroom." said the chancellor.

Answering another question, Zumberge said the campus administration had considered but rejected a suggestion to seek legislative approval to move funds from program to program within the univer-

He said such a suggestion was considered "very comnlex" and he said a time problem might be encountered.

In his presentation, Zumberge had noted all cuts will come from Program 711, the instructional and reserch program. He said state law makes it impossible to transfer funds from other programs. such as administration, into the instructional program.

. . . 2 Americans Live

Moscow (4) - A Japan Air Lines jet lifting into the wintry sky over Moscow's international airport crashed in a ball of fire Tuesday night, killing most of the 76 persons aboard.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported 16 persons were hospitalized. It was feared the other 60 passengers and crew members died in a fiery plunge into the snow near Sheremetyevo Airport.

An American Embassy officer said two Americans were among the survivors. The two were receiving emergency treatment at Moscow's Botkin Hospital, he said, but their identities or condition were not available.

Officials of Japan Air Lines in Moscow were unable to say whether any Americans were among the killed because the on-board passenger list carried no mention of

A Japanese woolen goods exporting firm, San-Ei Shoji, said one of the plane's passengers was Monroe S. Brettler, president of the Brettler International Sales Corp. of New York, A spokesman said Brettler had an appointment later in the week at the firm's Nagoya office.

JAL listed "M. Brettler" among the 10 non-Japanese passengers, but there was no indication whether he was among the survivors.

Second In Six Weeks

It was the second major accident near Sheremetyevo Airport in six weeks. A Soviet Aeroflot Liyushin 62 airliner crashed Oct. 13, killed 176 persons. That was the worst accident in civil aviation history.

Tuesday night's JAL flight 446 originated in Copenhagen. It had just taken off for a long haul over Siberia to Tokyo when, for unexplained reasons, it burst into flames. It plunged 400 fect into the snow-covered ground 2½ miles from the airport.

About 300 rescue workers sped to the crash site. The survivors were pulled free and sent to nearby Botkin Hospital

Japanese Embassy and airline officials said there were 52 Japanese passengers aboard the plane, along with 10 non-Japanese passengers and 13 crew members, apparently including back-up personnel.

A Botkin Hospital nurse said at least 10 survivors were being treated there. Other than one person, she thought, was an Englishman, she was unable to give their nationalities.

Western airline sources said Ichiko Katakami, the Japanese ambassador to Panama, and his wife were among the sur-

Three of the airline's mechanics who had serviced the four-engine DC8 at its Moseow stopover, said they saw fire break out before the craft nosed toward the ground.

A British European Airways pilot said he saw a ball of fire about the same time the plane was climbing into the overcast sky.

Soviet officials and news media still were silent about the crash more than five hours afterward. They seldom report airline accidents in the Soviet Union, Sketchy information on the crash six weeks ago was given by the official Soviet news agency Tass the next day.

First reports of Tuesday night's accident came from a Japanese Air Lines official at the airport. He said ground controllers had lest radio contact with the plane shortly after

Gov. Exon To Insist On Guaranteed Tax Relief

. . . OR HE'LL VETO SCHOOL AID

By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday said he would veto 1973 state school aid legislation if it is patterned after proposals approved by the Legislature in its last two sessions.

The governor vetoed state aid measures in both 1971 and

Responding to criticism of his own plan voiced by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly. Exon said the primary difference between his proposal and those previously authored by the senator is guaranteed property tax relief.

Tax Relief Gone

"Ours is geared to long-term assurance of real property tax relief where his is aimed more at aid to education without relief guarantees over the long pull," the governor declared.

Warner is chairman of a Legislative Council study committee on state aid which is scheduled to recommend school aid legislation to the 1973 Unicameral. "I can't comment on his plan because evidently it's a 'secret plan' and I don't know what it is." Exon said, Reliably Reported

But, he said, "it is reliably reported to be geared to doubling the sales and income tax rates in Nebraska. "If this is true. I will veto such a measure again. "It sounds to me as if after all their fancy hearings, they will probably simply trot out the same old horse that fell to my vetoes in the last two

Pentagon Post To Richardson

President Nixon launched his sweeping second-term Cabinet shakeup Tuesday by naming administration veteran Elliot 1.. Richardson to be the next secretary of defense.

To succeed Richardson as the secretary of health, education and welfare, Nixon said he will nominate Casper Weinberger who is now director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Completing a triple-header announcement, the President named millionaire industrialist Roy Ash, president of Litton industries, to succeed Weinberger in the Cabinet-level OMB post.

The selection of Richardson and Weinberger are subject to confirmation by the Senate when it returns in January. Ash does not need Senate confirmation.

Announced By Ziegler Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, disclosing the personnel changes to newsmen in a helicopter hangar here.

"These three announcements come at a time when an intensive review is being undertaken of the entire government structure and they are part of the President's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administra-

There had been advance speculation that Richardson might be picked to succeed Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who disclosed weeks ago that he planned to resign at the end of Nixon's first term. However, there had been equally persistent rumors that Richardson might become secretary of state to head the department in which he served as undersecretary during the early part of the Nixon tenure. Richardson, 52, has been HEW chief since 1970. Long active in Republican politics in Massachusetts, the erudite Richardson was neutenant governor and torney general of that state in the 1960s FTC Chairman

Weinberger, 55, joined the Nixon team in 1970 as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission after serving as director of finance for Nixon's Responding to inquiries. Ziegler said Ash will resign as Litton president Dec. 9 and would divest himself of his considerable stockholdings in the company. Ash also is a member of the executive committee of the Bank of America.

During the first two years of the Nixon administration, Ash served as chairman of Nixon's Advisory Council on Executive Organization - a part-time joh. Ziegler said:

"During the second term, the President intends for the Office of Management and Budget to assume a new, expanded role - to undertake a comprehensive examination of all government programs now in existence to determine whether they are actually meeting the purpose for which they were designated."

He said that Nixon believes Ash's "proven management skills and strong leadership will be the right combination to direct the OMB in its new responsibilities.

The train's steam locomotive had been the proudest handiwork from an unusual hopbybusiness. Eight others of his trains, mostly gasoline models are now hauling passengers in Nebraska, South Dakota, North Carolina, Oregon, Idaho and Colorado.

One of the $2,500 gasoline units was recently given to the Child Evangelism Fellowship for its summer camp at Louisville. Another is carefully stored in Ed's garage for future parades and other appearances.

"I've hauled thousands of kids through the years. reflected the oldster. "Guess I gave too fany free rides though to make any money at

Although this is his first attempt at a steam auto, the retired blacksmith-machinist is confident of success. He has serviced steamers of virtually every size and has been licensed to do precise code boiler work. Plans for the vehicle call for a size capable of hauling five passengers. Ed has vet to locate a suitable chassis but has his eye on "a set of real sporty wire wheels."

A devout member of the Oak Community Church, Troudt has supplied that congregation's pulpit on several occasions as well as others in the area. His willingness to preach exemplifies the strong convictions he shares with all who enter his shop.

Dublin - Sean MacStiofain, the jailed chief of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army broke his 10-day fast with a cup of tea. the Irish government announced in Dublin. (More on Page 15.)

Two Frenchmen Beheaded

Paris - Two Frenchmen convicted of killing two hostages in a prison riot were executed by guillotine in Sante prison in a Paris suburb. The executions of Claude Buffet and Roger Bontems, the first persons to be executed in France in more than 312 years, have renewed the debate over capital punishment in France, where half of the population is in favor of capital punishment. (More on Page 15.)

Nixon Begins Overhaul

Washington - President Nixon began the reorganization of his Cabinet by nominating Elliot L. Richardson as secretary of defense, and Caspar W. Weinberger as Richardson's successor as secretary of health, education and welfare. The President also appointed Roy L. Ash, president of Litton Industries and architect of a 1971 plan to restructure the executive branch, to succeed Weinberger as director of the White House Office of Management and Budget. (More on Page 1.)

Draft To Be Less Than 10,000

Washington - Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced that fewer than 10,000 men would be drafted in the first half of 1973 before the draft authority expires and the armed forces shift to an all-volunteer basis on July 1. He said there would be no draft calls in January and that the relatively small inductions would be spaced out between February and June. (More on Page 15.)

Prof. Popkin Out Of Jail

Dedham, Mass. - Samuel L. Popkin, assistant professor of government at Harvard University, was released from jail when the federal government, in a surprise move, dismissed the grand jury investigating the public release of the Pentagon Papers. Popkin had been jailed for contempt for refusing to answer certain questions asked by the grand jury. His prison sentence had been intended to expire with the grand jury's dismissal, which had been scheduled for next Jan. 12.

Nixon Lets Only $2 Billion Go

Washington - President Nixon ordered the Environmental Protection Agency to allot to the states only $2 billion of the $5 billion authorized by Congress in the present fiscal year for waste treatment plants, and only $3 billion of the $6 billion authorized for fiscal 1974, according to EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus. (More on Page 35.)

conditions include freedom of mobility for the four-nation supervisory commission, freedom for each member to report its findings as it sees it, a guarantee that an international body will hear the reports and assurances that all four parties in the fighting want Canadian par-

He described that commission's role dating from the 1954 Geneva Conference as a farce and said Canada will not serve on the new body unless it is assured the system will work.

According to the source, Canada will serve in an interim capacity between the time of a cease-fire and the determinations of the international conference, using the current Canadian ICC

Although numbering only 19 members the source indicated more men could be added, perhaps as many as 300.

Any more than that would present problems and the Ottawa government would be unwilling to take such a step without knowing more of the details, he stated.

In the ICC experience, the source said. Canada felt hampered because it could not report its findings unless the other members. Poland and India, also agreed. This means if a Canadian saw a violation he could not report it unless both India and Poland

No One To Report To

In addition, there was no one to report to beyond the involved parties, leaving the ICC telling the violator of its violation.

B v seeking some ternational body, the source mentioned the United Nations as a possibility, the new commission could take its case to the public.

He said Canada has no information on the status of the U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris other than some details concerning the peace-keeping operation.

And even here, he said, the United States has not been able give Ottawa all the assurances it wants because the negotiations are still in

The source also said Canada has dealt tentatively with the other proposed commission members - Poland, Indonesia and Hungary - but its main contacts have been with the United States.

Adventurer Found Freedom

When Denis Young set out by himself across the Atlantic from the Canary Islands to Barbados - a 2.700 mile yoyage — there was no turning back: Prevailing winds and currents dictated a one-way route where no snips sail and where fish have never seen man.

But he did have freedom - more than he finds in Lincoln, where he's won a pilot's license and is now working on a commercial license but finds himself chafing under the regulations which surrounded flying.

The freedom he found at sea, though, had moments he'll never forget.

When Young awoke one day to find an Atlantic gale wrenching his 30-foot sailing ketch, he clung white-knuckled and sea-spewed to the wheel for 10 punishing hours without sleeping or eating - except for one bouillon cube, all he could reach. (It made him

When he awoke another morning to find the Atlantic calm and still as petrified silence, he anxiously whacked the side of his craft to make sure be wasn't deaf.

When Young heard an unfamiliar snort while he was having coffee in his cockpit, he looked out over the side to see a dorsal fin attached to a huge gray mass floating alongside Forward and aft, the glimmering hulk of a whale extended the length of the ketch Young was frightened to death But the creature wanted only to scratch iself on the barnacles covering

Denis Young wasn't always a True Adventurer. But he won't admit it even Restlessness The 51-year-old Britisher doesn't fit into the Thor Heyerdahl genre of True Adventurer. (Thor had company.) Sitting unassumingly over lunch and endless cups of coffee, Young's eyes betrayed an unfulfilled restlessness as he recounted his journey with his subdued yet spirited English accent.

What moves a man to sail alone for 34 days across the ocean?

A marine engineer. Young owned a successful engineering business in Laverpool. He said he was making enough money, but "I was fed up with the cradle-to-the grave socialist state in England. It kills incentive, it kills enthusiasm "

He decided to sell his business Soon after, the bachelor set out one day from the Poole Yacht Club. "I him across the English Channel to Cherbourg, France, where he whiled away a week and stocked his ketch with booze "It's cheap there."

Next he went south across the Bay of Biscayne toward Lisbon where he encountered his first bout with bad weather, "five or six days of it" ha said At the height of the gale which lasted almost two days - he said he lowered all the sails (called 'lying the hull') and lay waiting for by Vasco Da Gama and other early Portugese explorers he admires. Yet he said he used only sun sights (astral navigation) to get where he wanted

His accuracy didn't matter much, he said, because his ketch moved at only four or five miles an hour and "whichever way the wind takes you, you won't be too far off course."

From Lisbon. Young sailed around Spain's southern corner for the Straits

Young's sea navigation didn't match the daring of Da Gama's. He plotted his way to Lanzarote, one of the Canaries, only 18 miles long in the vast Atlantic. "But you can't miss it." he said. "One mountain peak on it is 12,500 feet high."

"I cruised up and down the islands, and again filled up with booze" for the long trip across the Atlantic.

Not Frightened

Was he ever frightened? Not really, he said, "but "I must adm.t I hadn't put my astral navigation to any proof" and once one casts off from the Canaries and passes the Cape Verde Islands to the south, "there's no turn-

He was off the steamship route, he said, and he didn't see a thing on the sailing route during the month-long journey. "So I slept most of the time."

He recalled "The first eight or ten days, one gets a bit of apprehension whether the navigation course is working out."

Especially considering interrup-

Well into the voyage. Young said after he had set the sails for calm weather and gone to sleep, he awoke to find himself "being tossed about." A storm had come up with a squall line "that just emptied the heavers."

It was "one hell of a gale." he said, "I stayed at the helm from about half past four until two a.m. without anything to eat. I couldn't let go of the wheel. I couldn't get 'em (the sails) down. She might've broached to," he said.

When he wasn't battling the elements, Young was hoping he wouldn't have to battle sea creatures. The whale that visited his boat for a back-scratch decided to stay and play - or at least that's what Young hoped it was - for a full day and part of a night.

"He came clean out of the water," Young shuddered remembering, saying the whale leaped every bit as high as the ketch's 30-foot mast, then it streaked beneath the boar. "I said more prayers in those 18 hours than I've said in my entire life.'

He recalled other puzzling occurrences as he progressed across the Atlantic: "Right out in the middle, you get land birds — they land right on the deck. They're a thousand miles from any land, and they're dead tired."

On days when the Atlantic was smooth, Young said, he looked over the side and saw "the boat surrounded with fish, eating at the barnacles." They had "never seen man," he said. "They appeared very tame, had no fear of man.'

Pollution Everywhere

He was also surprised, he said, to find pollution in the middle of the sea. "After a rough day, there'd by a lot of oil on deck" which he guessed came from "ships dumping their tanks '

Also, he said, "you see lots of garbage floating. I'd see a glint of light out on a wave, and wonder, 'What can that be?' I'd find it's a bloomin'

Atter arriving at Barbados, he sailed among the West Indies and as far north as the British Virgin Islands. "I was going to sail to Australia." he said, "but I got fed up with being by myself."

Back in Grenada, one of the West Indies about 400 miles southeast of Puerto Rico and just north of Port-of-Spain, Young sold his boat to Robert Waring of Geneva, Neb.

He flew to Miami, bought a Volkswagen camper and took off, much as he left from the Poole Yacht Club, this time for a U.S. motor tour He ended up in Geneva to visit the War-

Prefers Sailing
Waring talked Young into taking flying lessons and he came to Lincoln. Although he had no previous flying experience, he has already got his private pilot's license and continues to work on his commercial rating. But he says he prefers sailing.

"I didn't realize there were all these (flying) regulations," he said. In a boat "you can sail anywhere. It's about the only freedom left in traveling."

Young said he's enjoyed landlubbering in Lincoln. "H's a break from sightseeing. I got blase about it." But he isn't sitting still for long.

On Jan. 2, he boards a Liberian freighter bound for Japan, Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong. He chose the freighter, he said, because its itinerary gives him more time at each port

When the Oriental Jade returns him to the States in March, Young says he'll travel to Alaska, "just to have

"It's the last place where there's a bit of freedom left, isn't it now?" he said more than asked. And besides, he says, he wants to see the places he read about in his school days -"The Klondike, is it?"

IN PERSPECTIVE

B14 WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Maybe it will finally turn out to be an idea whose time has not vet come or maybe even an idea that will never have a time but it is interesting nonetheless to speculate upon an innovative career education approach between the Lincoln School District and the Nebraska National Guard

Currently meeting in Lincoln are various local, state and national officials, for the purpose of examining the results and prospects of the Lincoln program. The program is one that puts high school students into work programs under auspices of the National Guard

The program is a fascinating one in itself and in light of the fact that it enters a rather uncharted area of need We may think we are quite sophisticated in vocational matters by now but the truth of it is that we still are in our infancy

Our schools engage themselves in guidance work and we have developed a substantial vocational educational system but we still are not solving the career problems of many young people Many of these young people are still groping in the dark for some sign as to their future

They still seek a better insight into their own potential and the opportunities that exist in the job market place. Unable to find the answers for which they search they embark upon a course of action that may or may not be right for them

They may proceed on to higher education when this is not the place for them or they may pursue a technical education that is wrong in any number of ways. If right in higher or technical education, they may still fail to take the right path along either way

The new Lincoln program allows a youngster to get a first-hand taste of a career that has some initial appeal to him. At the moment, the program is a very limited one but it would seem to have tremendous potential and that is why officials have gathered together to take a look at what is being done.

Imagine a high school situation in which a wide variety of circumstances could be duplicated. Duplicating higher educational life experiences might be somewhat difficult but even that could be done to a better degree than is now the case

A cooperative career program with business, industry trades and professions in the area would offer an outstanding opportunity for young people to come to know first-hand the inside of the kind of life they might contemplate. Thus, they might work as seniors in some aspect of retailing, of fashion design, of sales, of accounting, of abstracting, of law, of the building trades, of appliance repairing and of a wide range of other

This would require the full cooperation of business and industry and would be quite a logistical challenge for the school system, but it could pay handsome dividends Rather than just talking or thinking about a career, a young man or woman would gain a first-hand knowledge of that career

With such a background, a far more intelligent decision on one's future could be made by the individual. Even the transition from the classroom to the working world might be greatly facilitated through such a program.

In the course of their academic-career work students would find their apprehensions over landing a job at least diminished Possibly, some of them would find the career spot during school that would be their initial place of full employment

Employers would have to be willing to make the sacrifice of becoming a training ground and the time and money that this would entail but it would be worth it to them in several ways For one it could add stability to their hiring program by exposing them to many potential employe prospects

Secondly, business and industry owe something to the free enterprise system of which they are a part. This kind of program comes under the social-conscious aspects of the business

One would be naive to think that the Lincoln program could be easily molded into a perfect solution to the career problems of young people but it is a new avenue of exploration and that is what we need. The school system and the National Guard are to be commended for their efforts and cooperation

Panel Opposes Gun Control

If the National League of Cities public safety committee has its way, the league—the nation's larget group of municipal officials-will turn heels on past policy and refrain from lobbying for gun control legislation at the state and federal level Most of the support for tougher gun control legislation in the past has come from law enforcement officials and their friends within the league

Now involved in annual meeting in Indianapolis, league members are updating the list of national policy decisions which serves as the league's lobbying guideline. As part of that chore, the public safety committee Monday rejected by a lopsided margin a resolution advocating federal laws prohibiting interstate sale of all firearms and mandating a minimum 10-year sentence for the use of a firearm in any crime. This is pretty strong language holding little hope of ever being passed-for good reason-and the committee's vote on it can't be questioned

But by similar lopsided margins the panel voted down a substitute resolution calling for national legislation against manufacture importation, sale and private possession of handguns except for use by law enforcement personnel the military and sportsmen's clubs and a national handgun registration law—the policy approved by the US Conference of Mayors—and a call for state registration of all firearms and licensing of all citizens who

Leading the opposition to the resolutions, City Councilman Nathan Forb of Richmond, Va argued "they are impossible to enforce put the burden on the honest citizen to comply while the criminal will not comply and, with the abolition of capital punishment, every citizen needs every possible way to defend inmself? Forb ~ first two arguments are hackneyed oldtimers used for years by gun manufacturers and fearful conservatives to frustrate effective gun control legislation against the public will The latter argument, a newer one, is bloodchilling. The abolition of capital punishment was not meant to encourage killing, even under the ambiguous color of selfdefense It has no place in any serious argument on gun control

The full league membership has not vet acted on the gun-control motions and we don t know whether or not the delegates will take the league out of the business of lobbying tor it But we do know that for years a majority of people when asked by pollsters have supported stronger gun control measures and with every brutal political assassination and murders of policemen there is a public outcivin their behalf. If supposedly responsible elected officials remove a powerful lobbying body fron the gun control field, the field is left open to irresponsible offic als and the powerful gun lobby who will continue to frustrate the public will

Big Plans Get Results

Omana Mayor Eugene Leahy last week again brought up the proposal to move both fair manager Henry Brandt and Ak-Sar-Ben State Fair grounds to a new site between Lincoln and Omaha as part of the development of a new town

A number of proposals concerning development between Nebraska's two largest cities have circulated in recent years plans for the construction of a lower Platte River dam with its hoped for economic and recreational benefits a high-speed public transit system between Omaha and Lincoln, a domed sports complex a mid-way airport and so

Such grandiose plans have fallen by the wayside largely because planners and leaders in government and the private citizenry have felt that the benefits will not justify the costs Some of the proposals may be realized in some form or another in future years-and again they may not. But it doesn't hurt to keep proposing them and thinking about the Ak Sar-Ben complex and the Nebraska executive director, Tom Brock both said they don't think their present facilities should be moved because the costs would be too high Brandt noted that the state investigated the posibility of moving the fairgrounds some years ago and concluded then that costs would be prohibitive since that time Brandt added the state has decided to invest more in the present facility and 'is enjoying new cooperation with the University of Nebraska in the form of a new joint-use facility to be built on the present fair grounds. Similarly, when tentative talks on a joint Lincoln-Omaha airport were dropped, the authorities in both cit es decided to sink funds into major improvements at the existing airports

Thus there is an additional benefit in thinking really big, even if plans never get off the ground The responsible authorities tend to take stock of what they have at the time and what improvements can be

Manchester, much of the deer hunting hereabouts is done by local people who need the venison to fill out their winter larders This may be small comfort to those who, having seen deer in their native freedom, are baffled to know how anyone could shoot them, but at least it seems less wanton than killing these graceful creatures for mere sport, without any necessity of using

The woods, quite literally, are full of deer hunters these days. They make the forest unsafe for others to tramp about in, and they raise the old questions about the American male's passion for guns, but in most states the deer herds are well managed and the annual kill falls well within permissible limits. The red-capped hunters do suggest, however, how close we are to a day when men necessarily went to the woods to feed their families - how close we are in America to a far different, simpler, not necessarily preferable but still dominant

This process seems to move at inordinate speed in America, the built-in obsolescence of automobiles seems to find its counterpart in the quick passing of styles techniques, instruments even ways of life and livelihood and there more anywhere else individuals and businesses are hard put to stay abreast of developing technology and gadgetry

It is by no means original but it may be appropriate at the Thanksgiving season to contrast the velocity and volume of this kind of change air-conditioning for the old swishing overnead four-bladed fans of barber shops and drug stores for instance - with the tenacity of ideas and beliefs What a contradiction it seems, for only one example that in a society of onrushing and relentless change the man jus elected president in one of history's greatest landslid's should be a fervent advocate of such ancient American nofew modern craftsmen could tions as the responsibility of

The Hunters In The Woods every individual to work hard and without stint, in the certainty that such working individuals will be rewarded, in heaven if not on earth

But Richard Nixon is not the only one who clings to a faith or an attitude, despite the American kaleidoscope around him Wallace voters are not noticeably up in arms about sor the immense change that the superhighway and its satellites — shopping centers the fast-food industry, motels - are making on the face of America, yet, such voters are often said to be resistant to and resentful of changing values, particularly those represented by the "counte culture" of the young or the new militancy of blacks T irony is that the counterculture and black militan y are based at least nartia. on an effort to redeem old values" rather than pa ing lip se vice to them wh. 1 ignoring them in practice

Most Americans, in fact, believe in something cailed "the old values;" there is some evidence that the dominant political force in America today is a loose coalition of those who are fearful of change - in social and moral values, in economic relationships, residential patterns, cultural traditions. It is striking, therefore, that there is so much tangible change all about us; almost the universal experience in America is that of the visible obsolescence of things once vital to our daily life

Is it possible for instance that in the age of the computer and of complex technology the work ethic" of an agricultural socety can remain unchanged? Should it? Is it teasable that amid so much affluence social attitudes as to what for example constitutes a useful life - should be rigidly maintained? These are not new questions nor are they easily answered but the hunters in the woods like so many other contradictions in them go unnoticed

Cabinet Tilt Bodes More Power

Nixon is reorganizing the federal government again, and when presidents retreat to Camp David and start drawing little squares on vellow pads you'd better put on your specs

Tor every reorganization of the big machine since the last some of the nation's biggest world war whether in the black radio personal ties have mark of security of efficiency people has ended with the president getting more power the Congress getting less power and the people getting he short end of the stick

This isn't usually a conscious plot to tilt the machine toward the White House, but somehow It seems to happen that way

Roosevelt began centralizing authority in the White House time but often prevents the mainly because cabinet meetings bored him. He kept Cordell Hull in the State other side, diminishes the Department for over 11 years, not because Hull was a good he looked like a secretary of much of his power over to who don't want to play secondtheir secretaries of state had such authority that the serious newspapers in the country felt obliged to print the texts of their press conferences but Presidents Kennedy Nixon. and to a lesser extent Johnson, preferred their own kitchen cibinets in the White House, and in the last four years no editor considering the cost of newsprint has felt obliged to publish the transcript of more than one or two of Secretary of State Rogers's Q and A with the reporters Usually, there are good arguments for making decisions privately behind the executive shield in the White House The trouble with this System is that it not only saves president from hearing the uncomfortable truths on the authority of the cabinet and the experts in the civil and president's ability to attract inner circle in the White or reasonable ment to increase the authority of the White House over domestic policy as he has, with considerable success, over foreign policy Henry Kissinger has not only defined the foreign policy questions for decision, and placed before the President the arguments for and against various options, but he has been a careful and loyal negotiator of whatever policy the President chose to follow.

From the President's point

In the name of security, ef-control over the Supreme Court

in his second term

And the irony of all this is that the people, most of the press, and even the conservative Republicans, who used to be worried about personal liberty, deficit financing, and centralized power in Roosevelt's White House, are now indifferent or overwhelm-

Fete Set Despite Hurdles

By PEGGY POLK London (UPI) - It's the wrong season for horse shows, the French won's send the "Mona Lisa" and Labor Party leaders complain the governent is giving the people circuses because it can't give them bread.

But plans are nearly complete for the Fanfare for Europe, a festival of cultural sports and popular entertainment celebrating Britain's entry into the european Common Market.

The fanfare will open Jan. 1, the day Britain, Ireland and Denmark join France, Italey, West Germany, Holland Belgium and Luxembourg as members of the European Economic Community (EEC).

300 Ivents Three hundred events already have been scheduled, ranging from the first public performance of Berlioz' "La Nonne Sanglante" to a football match at Wembley between players from the three incoming nations and the six current members.

No horse shows, the organizers said, because of the cold weather.

Stephen Reiss, festival director for cultural events recently told a news conference said his committee would soon announce the full list of major works of art to be loaned to Britain by each of the member governments.

But the "Mona Lisa" won't be among them.

The fanfare organizers denied they had ever asked France to contribute the Leonardo da Vinci masterpiece for their sixweek exhibition featuring one work from each country.

"This was discussed committee, that it would be nice to have supreme works of art and when one thinks of supreme works of art one thinks of the Mona Lisa,' Reiss acknowledged. "Not Appropriate"

But, interjected J.A.L Morgan, secretary of the Committee for Noncultural Events, the "Mona Lisa" would not have been "appropriate" from France because Da Vinci was an Italian.

Instead France will lend George de La Tour's "Le Tricheur a l'as de Carreau" from the Louvre. Italy will send Michelangelo's "Brutus," and unfinshed bust from the Colletion in Bargello Florence.

The fanfare also has its political troubles.

Members of the Labor Party. who opposed entry into the market, have attacked the c o n s ervative government's decision to spend the equivalent of $840,000 to stage the festival at a time when it was imposing a wage and price freeze to fight inflation.

Putnam County Sheriff Makes No Arrests, Totes No Gun

By PMAMELA REEVES

Hennepm, Ill (UPI)-During two years in office, the sheriff of Putnam County has never made an arrest or even carried a gun "Basically, I think it's a man's job." says Sheriff Martha Calbow, the only woman now holding the office in Illinois' 102 counties

So she leaves it to her deputy husband, Warren, and four other part-time assistants, to carry guns and make arrests. She cooks all meals for prisoners, and, if she goes on patrol, her husband goes along because "I just think it's for a man to go and do these things,'

Some other people in this central Illinois agricultural community of 650 persons apparently hold the same view

One man called and asked for the sheriff last week," sne said 'When I told him I was sheriff he replied, 'this don't sound like a sheriff, it sounds ካke a lady ' '

Mrs. Calbow is a 46-year-old blonde who laughs shyly about her job when discussing it with strangers. She ran for the office in 1970 at her husband's suggestion. He had been sheriff four years and under the law then couldn't succeed himself.

'It started out as a joke." she said during a recent interview, turning to glance at the police radio which blares constantly into her small office in the basement of the whitepillared county courthouse.

"I thought he was kidding, but he said, 'Why don't you try it?' and I did."

The county treasurer, who couldn't succeed himself either, had the same idea Both his wife and Mrs Calbow won the election over male opponents.

UNL Physicists Present Papers

Three members of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Physics Department are presenting technical papers at the American Physical Society's Division of Electron and Atomic Physics meeting this week in San Francisco, Calif

They are Dr. Geoffrey B Crooks, associate in physics, Dr Franklin D Schowenberdf, visiting assistant protessor of physics, and Dr Lutz Kurzweg, visiting assistant prolessor of physics.

Mrs. Calbow, in fact, won by a margin three times larger than her husband polled in 1966 from the county's 6,000 residents. Having grown up on a Putnam County farm, she is well-known in the area. But she believes the margin was also due to the fact that "most people liked Warren and knew he would be working with me." Thus, acting on her husband's wishes, she became his boss

Since she had been a deputy to him for four years, she found her duties didn't change much when she took com-

She still acts as jail matron and bookkeeper, still does the linens for the prison and still cooks meals for the average of three monthly prisoners (usually drunk drivers) who spend a night in the county's 135-year-old cells

Since the sheriff's house is attached to the jail and adjacent to the courthouse, she can move easily back and forth, sending her 13-year-old son off to school, and doing housework after she finishes her sheriff's chores. Both Calbow's work in the office seven days a week.

Mrs. Calbow has not had ny physical defense training, and she leaves arrests (' issued one traffic ticket") to her husband, a former truck

Enjoys Her Job

Nevertheless, she clearly enjoys her job - as long as Deputy Calbow is around.

"If I see something is wrong," she said, "I usually will call my husband and he comes and takes care of it.

"I really haven't made an arrest myself I've never been in a dangerous situation. I've had no need for a gun yet, although I keep a loaded pistol in my house, and I hope I never do.

"But I'll tell you, if I had to use it, I probably would "

The sheriff worked in a factory in Sterling, Ill, for 15 years before she retired to raise three sons. She said her current job is more insteresting, gun or no gun.

the time," she said, "it might be two burglaries, but each one is different Burglaries, in fact, are the most serious crimes perpetrated in Putnam County since the Calbows took office. More typical. Mrs. Calbow said, are "silly" calls, such as a woman asking where to get black cement.

"A man bought a duck call

Crop Damage Estimate Set At $653,000

Falls City (UPI) - US. Department of Agriculture area officials have estimated Richardson County crop losses from the recent snowstorm at approximately $653,000

Most of the damage was to mile and soybean fields The county had been asked along with others to supply Gov. J. J. Exon with estimates of the total damage in order that part of southeast Nebraska might be declared a disaster area.

It was estimated that some producers might have as much as 75% damage that didn't work and wanted to talk to Warren. But then to know what we were going to do about it," she said.

"Some people just don't understand what a sheriff's job is. Another guy told us he saw a man steal two tires. He wanted my husband and me to go get those tires, but he wouldn't sign a complaint"

On more serious calls, she said, "a lot of people won't tell me anything, they'll want some will only talk to me."

Mrs. Calbow, admittedly not a follower of women's liberation as it affects personal relationships, is not insulted by the slights.

"He (Warren) always tells me I'm the boss, but I think he is," she said.

"I think a man is the head of a household, and if he isn't - he should be."

Accordingly, she will not run for re-election in 1974, even though Putnam County voters decided in 1970 when they elected her that a sheriff should be able to succeed him

(or her) self. "I don't think I want to be sheriff again," she said. "If he (Warren) could succeed himself, I might. I enjoy being sheriff, but I would leave it

Pine Ridge, S. D. (UPI) -Dennis Banks, Minneapolis, Minn, a leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), was escorted off the Pine Ridge Indian Rservation Tuesday for the second time and the tribal leader said if he returns "he'll be arrested

Dick Wilson, president of the Oglala Sioux Tribal Council, said Banks was escorted off the reservation at 12 noon by tribal police.

Banks was arrested by federal officer Duane Brewer of Porcupine, a reservation community, late Monday night for violation of a tribal court restraining order against his presence on the reservation. Wilson said. Banks had been escorted off the reservation as far as the Nebraska line to the south on Thanksgiving Day but later returned

Wilson and tribal leaders have expressed disagreement with some methods used by AIM to draw attention to Indians' living conditions, claiming they do more harm than good by demonstrations and threats.

Among recent activities of AIM leaders in this area were a demonstration of some 600 persons at Gordon, Neb., last March and a brief occupation a week ago at Ft. Robinson, Neb. a former cavalry station where famed Oglala Sioux Leaders of AIM sponsored the Gordon demonstration in protest to the handling by local authorities into the death of Indian ranch hand Raymond Yellow Thunder, 51, Porcupine. Three men later were convicted of manslaughter in connection with a fatal beating suffered by Yellow Thunder.

The occupation of Ft. Robinson was a demonstration to bolster claims by Indian leaders that an 1868 treaty had consigned the land at Ft. Robinson to the Indians.

Edward G. Hegel and his wife Goldie were working at the Castle Drive-In Liquor Store when a man came in and asked for a bottle of wine. The store did not carry the brand so the man settled for flavored vodka and pretzels.

As the items were being rung up the man produced a gun and demanded money. Hegel told police that he asked the man if he were kidding and whether it was a toy gun.

Hegel said the man then told him to hand over the money or he would shoot his wife. Hegel handed over the cash.

The attorney for the Crete Board of Education told the State Court of Industrial Relations there is nothing to negotiate as far as teacher contracts for this year are concerned.

The teachers have already signed contracts "without any exceptions or conditions," said Crete attorney Gerald Hallstead.

But Ted Kessner of Lincoln, representing the Crete Education Association, said the teachers had no choice but to sign and further that the signing did not void the right to negotiate.

"They had to sign contracts as a mater of law," he said. "But that does not mean abandonment of the right to negotiate.

The teacher organization filed suit in the Industrial requesting that the Court school board be ordered to recognize the association as the collective bargaining agent for the instructors and an order to proceed with negotiations over contract terms for the current school

Hallstead, however, said the school district is under no obligation to negotiate terms and conditions of employment.

Unless the school board authorizes recognition "there is no duty on the part of the board to negotiate," he said. The board is seeking a dismissal of the suit.

Tom Wekesser, Miss Kennedy Win Elks' Honors

Deborah M. Kennedy of Lincoln High and Tom Wekesser of Southeast High School have been chosen winners of the local Elks Leadership Contest.

Each of the students will receive a $100 award from the local Elks Lodge, which selected the two in competition among 19 students from Lincoln public high schools and from Waverly Senior High.

Miss Kennedy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kennedy of 4330 Randolph, and Wekesser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wekesser of 5301 A.

Students chosen runners-up in the contest are Vicki Jones. Lee Johnson. William M. Noel. all of Lincoln High, and Susie McCracken of Southeast Hìgh.

Each student who enters the contest submits a brochure containing evidence of leadership activities in school, church and community. Scholarship is not counted as part of the criteria to win.

Winners are judged on leadership activities, evidence of citizenship appreciation, perseverance, resourcefulness, sense of honor, neatness and brochure arrangement.

akeview Addition Okayed After Heated Session

StarStaffWriter

In a session marked by an unusual amount of disagreement, the Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday moved closer to construction of additions on two of its buildings and took action on several other property-related matters.

The disagreements began during discussion of a recommendation to add six more classrooms and a gymnasium to Lakeview Elementary School and continued through votes on several expenditures.

Over the objections of Robert Wekesser, the board approved a recommendation for the Lakeview addition, which would be a six-station rather than the eight-station addition originally proposed.

Supt. John Prasch revised the proposal, cutting back the Wekesser objected, however, contending the six-station addition may be too large.

Prasch estimated cost of the addition and furnishings at no more than $400,000.

Without dissent, the board approved appointment of the firm of Hemphill. Vierk and Dawson as architects for an addition at Irving Junior High, suggested the 6% fee may be too high.

The board's dollar limit will mean plans to build a storage building will also have to be scrapped.

With new member Ted Dewey dissenting, the board approved a proposal to offer the State Roads Dept. $22,800 for a 5.2-acre site directly east of the district's warehouse at Park Blvd, and South.

Several board members had questioned whether the property purchase was a priority item.

With Wekesser dissenting again, the board approved a plan to seek a federal $15,000 grant and combine it with a $15,000 gift from the Lincoln Independent Insurance Agents association to build a control tower at the driver education range at East High.

Actual tower construction costs, without equipment, will be $17,850.

put a postal card into the typewriter and sent the following message to: "The Price Commission Complaint Dept., Washington, D.C.":

"Dear Sirs: I am making a formal complaint against The Testors Corp., Rockford, Ill. 61101 USA. They raised their 'Pla Enamel' 30%, or from $.15 to $.19. This is only $.04, but being only 12-34 years old, this is a big strain on allowance. Thank you. A Concerned Consufer!

John Malachowsky."

That set the wheels in motion. The Price Commission referred the complaint to the Internal Revue Service, it's field enforcement arm. The IRS office at Rockford sent an agent to the Testor plant.

He learned, the suit filed Tuesday said, that Testor had increased its prices for the paint jars by 26.5%, to $12.31 from $9.72, at wholesale, for a gross, and to 19 cents a jar suggested retail price.

Miller, interviewed by telephone, said the company had not raised its price for 10 years. It began printing "19 cents" on caps in April 1971, he recalled, and began putting the new caps on bottles on Aug. 3, 1971, two days before President Nixon announced a wage-price freeze.

My mother, a Lincoln resident, had been receiving county assistance to the elderly to supplement her inadequate Social Security benefits. The county also paid her Medicare insurance and helped with prescriptions and doctor bills.

Then she received the Social Security increase, Her county check dropped and she was teld that she'd have to pay her own Medicare. I understood that the Social Security increase would not reduce her assistance. What happened?

-Mrs. D.D., Syracuse

ACTION LINE: Your mother was apparently one of a group of people who received reduced aid in this county when the Social Security increase occurred in October. Since the County Welfare Department had received no instructions to the contrary, they included the Social Security raise as income and that put your mother into the new category.

The county later learned that they were in error and adjustments are now being made. Reimbursement for this period, says a caseworker, will be made.

You and your mother should talk to her caseworker until you understand the specifies of her case.

Please settle a bet. Didn't Goldwater get more votes in losing in 1964 than McGovern did in losing this year?

-Larry, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Unofficially, no. Since this year's returns are not yet official, we can only compare 1964 figures to an unofficial UPI compilation.

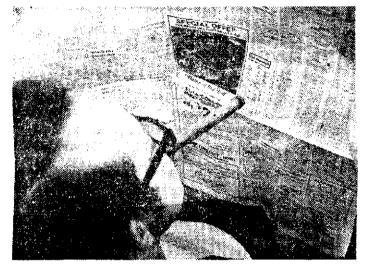

In 1964 Barry Goldwater took 27,145,161 popular votes. This year McGovern got about 28,419,009.

1964's winner also polled less than 1972's winner. President Johnson had 43,121,085 then. This year President Nixon got 45.901.204 votes. Goldwater got 38.6% of the vote in 1964 and McGovern 38.2% in 1972.

What are the health hazards of cigar smoking? Why weren't cigar commercials taken off the air when cigarette ads were? -R.D.W., Lincoln ACTION LINE: The hazards of eigar smoking seem not to have been as distinctly established and publicized as those of eigarettes, perhaps because there are fewer eigar smokers.

The American Cancer Society does say that cigar smoking "increases the chances of oral cancer" and recommends that people "avoid irritating the lips and mouth with tobacco."

cigarettes or a pipe.' Because they are not usually inhaled, eighrs apparently do not present as clear a threat to the respiratory system

The Congressional Quarterly Almanac shows that the decision to remove eigarette advertising from television was i based on research by the federal government into smoking. Lawmakers apparently were not convinced by that research that cigars presented the dangers to the American public that eighreftes did.

Picking Up Lump Of Salt Only Illicit Thrill Available In Sodom

By DAVID LANCASHIRE Sodom, Israel (4) --- Centuries before pornography and nude movie scenes turned sinning into ho-hum family entertainment, this part of Israel was the swingingest wicked city in the world. Nowadays Sodom dullsville.

For the dedicated sinner, the closest thing to an illicit thrill is picking up a lump of salt littering the empty landscape, bleaker than Death Valley.

Sodom in 1972 is a nature preserve, although just what the Israeli government is trying to preserve is dificult to imagine.

Nothing But Salt

There's nothing here except salt crystals, lying around like snow, but a sign proclaims "protected natural and swiping them qualifies as a sin, or at least Today's Calendar a crime.

In Old Testament days, Sodom must have made Las Vegas or Hamburg seem like a kindergarden. Along with Gomorrah, which has vanished from the face of the earth, Sodom got top billing in the Bible for unsavory repute. God destroyed them

The scriptures don't make clear exactly what was going on, but Genesis says: The men of Sodom were wicked, great sinners . . . The Lord rained on Sodom and Gomorrah brimstone and fire . . and He overthrew those cities . . . and lo, the smoke of the land went up like the smoke of a furnace.' That's pretty much the way it is even now, much the disappointment of tourists looking for a little iniquity in the holy land. The fire and brimstone and the smoke are still there, as a matter of fact, only they belch from the chimneys of the Dead Sea Works potash factory a few miles away.

To a sinner looking for action it's sort of tedious, but it's nice dollars and cents for the Israeli government. This vast mineral abyss, the lowest spot on earth at 1.292 feet below sea level, yields three per cent of the world's potash for fertilizer.

Nine dredger ships churn through the Dead Sea - so salty that no fish can live in it but a swimmer can sit in 20 feet of water reading a newspaper - each spewing up 800 tons of carnallite mineral salt per hour.

Not that there are many swimmers With water like

Hardly a bikini in sight. Even the operator of a local youth hostel says most of his customers are abou 60 years old.

The potash workers all live 90 minutes away in Beersheba and other cities.

For a tourist attraction at Sodom, there's a column of salt hidden behind a mountain. Guides say it recalls the wife of Lot, who was turned into a salt pillar for daring to look back as she fled from the brimstone raid on the city.

In the old days, the salt from Sodom was burned as a religious offering in the great temple of Jerusalem. More recently, when the Turkish empire put a tax on salt, Arab tribesmen used to smuggle the stuff secretly io shopkeepers ********** in the holy city.

Sodom Market The Sodom market on the map is an abandoned workers' settlement of 16 gutted huts, two empty buildings and a dry water tower, for s,ome mysterious reason decorated with a picture of a bucking bronco. Wafted through the heat is a choking smell of stewing minerals.

It's a scene of desolation that would gratify an Old Testament prophet.

One Biblical seer, however, seems to have been given a

MISS SHEILA MORBACH

This morning Mr. and Mrs Harry L Morbach of Bellwood make announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sheila, to Michael D. Louden, son of Mr and Mrs Harry Loudon of Schuyler.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Feb 10.

Miss Morbach was graduated from the Lincoln Technical School where she specialized in Jental assisting. She now is careering in the offices of Drs. York, Goman and Pudwill

Mr Louden is a senior in the University of Nebraska Teachers College, and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraterni-

Town

Echoes of the past pleasant ones, that is - always are a delight, and certainly we have just such an echo this morning.

It is about Thanksgiving guests, as you may have guessed, who came all of the way from Riverside, Conn, to spend the long. Thanksgiving weekend in Lincoln

The guest foursome included Mr. and Mrs John R, Lilly and their two children -Marcella (better known as Muffet), and J R who, of course, is John R. Lilly, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Lilly and their children were the guests of Mr. Lilly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lilly and also visited his brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs Dale Gibbs and their two daughters, Caitlin and Alison.

Thanksgiving, however, wasn't the only very special day for the members of the Lilly family There also was a wedding anniversary — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lilly's 46th - which was celebrated with a family dinner at the Lincoln Country Club on Saturday evening.

Friday evening, Dec 1 is the date of the Terpsichorean Club's dinner dance which is to be held at the Airport

We doubt that it would take even a second guess to discover that the party theme is Christmas Season

The party planners include Mr. and Mrs. John Alloway, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs E. R. Hinrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, Mr and Mrs Vance Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Novacek.

Sharen McNally Is November Bride

At a 7 o'clock ceremony which took place on Friday evening, Nov. 24. the marriage of Miss Sharen McNally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo McNally of Schuyler, to Ken Hunt of Sikeston, Mo., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hunt, was solemnized at St. Augustine's Catholic Church in Schuyler. The Rev. J. P. Downey read the lines of the service.

The bride chose Mrs. Dennis Waak of Schuyler to be her honor attendant; and Miss Terri Bedient and Mrs. Ann Sund, Jr. of Guiderock served as bridesmaid and bridesmatron, respectively.

Robert P. Hunt attended the bridegroom as best man; and the groomsmen and ushers included Gerald McNally of Schuyler, Dwayne Trebold of Beatrice, Tom Hasegawa and Steve

The gown chosen by the bride for her wedding was designed of candlelight satessa in the Princess silhouette. The fitted bedice was accented with a lace jabot, and it featured a mandarin collar and long, Bishop sleeves. A chapel-length train added back interest to the A-line skirt. Her floor-length mantilla was fashioned of lace, and she carried a cascade of white roses and miniature carnations centered with a cymbidium orchid.

Mr. Hunt and his bride are residing in Sikeston, Mo.

The bride was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she received a Bachelor's degree in Human Development and the Family. Mr. Hunt is also a graduate of the university, where he majored in chemistry.

Officers Recently Named

Members of the Southwood Town House Association recently gathered for the purpose of electing new officers and board members.

Thom Cope will serve as the group's president and he will share the responsibility of the Association's functions with other newly elected officers. The corp of officers also include Michael Boren, vice president; Kay Keene, secretary; Mrs. Douglas Horner, treasurer; and Jack Kriefel, director.

GS Council Receives Award

Council has received a $50 award to assist Scouts who are in financial need—and the award was presented to the Council through the efforts of Mrs. H. M. Noragon of Elk Creek, who was named secondprize winner in the Colgate-Palmolive "Help Young America" campaign.

The national campaign is conducted to determine the nation's favorite youth group.

Mrs Noragon elected to have the prize money given to the Homestead Council, which represents troops in the 13

On that particular afternoon, 1619 R St., will be the site of the sorority alumnae group's Christmas Bazaar and Tea.

Among the holiday fare to be featured at the philanthropical event will be lovely decorator candles, as well as holiday treats, baked goods, and a recipe book compiled by the members.

Proceeds from the bazaar and tea, which is scheduled between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock, will go to the Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae's philanthropy which seeks to aid juvenile delinquents.

Mrs. Gayle Burr is chairman of the event, and a group of her fellow alumnae met at her home on Monday afternoon, Nov. 27, to take inventory of the many holiday items to be exhibited at the bazaar. Pictured, from left to right, admiring the selection of candles for the sale, are Mrs. Burr, Mrs. Ross Greathouse, Mrs. Michael Edwards, Mrs. Joe Hultquist, and Mrs. Ronald Kirsch.

ple, and whether that teenager is a boy or a girl makes no difference in the matter of worrisome perplexities. Talk your troubles over with Roxi. - Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Roxi:

Last week I went to a family reunion and the relatives whom I hadn't seen for years came up to me and told me I looked so young for my age. Roxi, I'm not that young, I'm 17. Everyone says I look younger than 17, even my parents. How can I look

A. A makeup change could be the answer but I don't know what is wrong with looking younger than you are. In 10 years you'll want to look younger than your age, so enjoy life as it is, you only pass this Everytime I get two feet from a boy I get nervous. I'm beginning to think I'll category.

Teenagers have problems as do all peo- never get over that uneasy feeling. How do you get over that feeling around boys?

> A. By practice. The boys are in the same boat you are. Force yourself to think of boys as human beings. Say "hi" when you see one you know and be friendly but, most of all, be yourself. They're going to see through a fake . . . just like you would.

Dear Roxi:

I have the strange feeling that I'm being used. It seems like my friends, girls as well as boys all ask me for homework, I do it, and they copy it. I can't seem to say no. How can I? They're my friends and if I say no then they'll say I'm not much of a friend. What can I do?

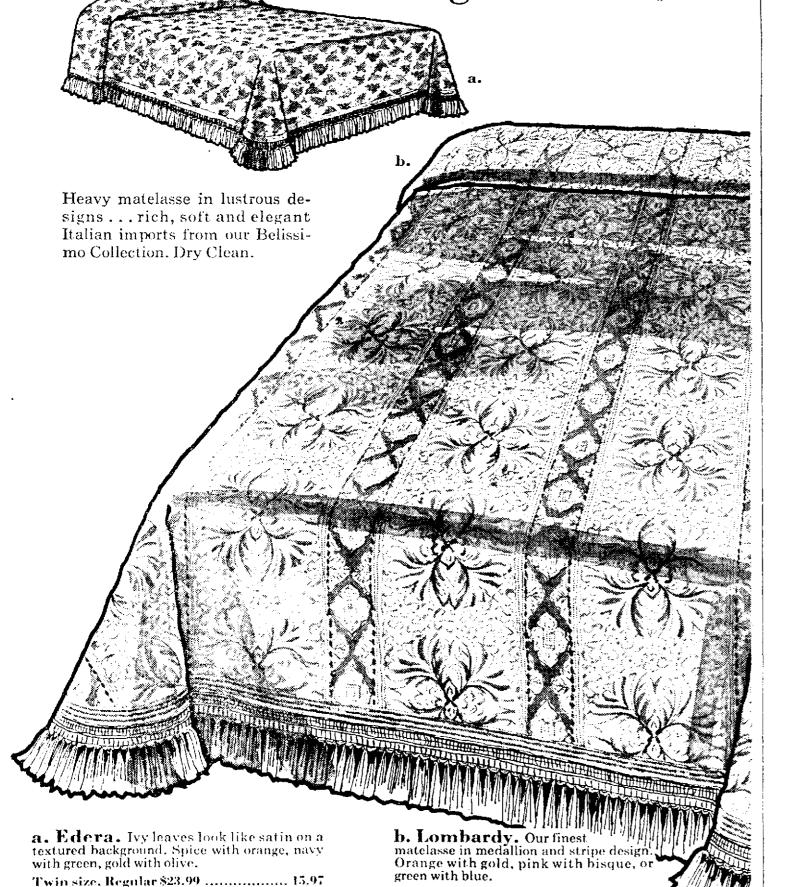

A. You can start by announcing the homework service is out of order permanently. You don't need those kinds of friends. Real friends do their own homework and leave homework out of the friendship

Ask Halston, the man who started the current caftan fever, oh, he wasn't the first designer to come back from a visit to Morocco with a caftan tucked under his arm. But he's certainly the one who made it catch on with you know, the people who count.

"It's helped a lot of women." he said the other day, accepting his role as perpetrator. "It's made their lives easier, #### more galmorous." What kind of people?

"Women who lead private lives, like Jackie Onassis, who just throw it on and are dressed in a minute," he answered thoughtfully. "Mrs. William Paley has it in 10 colors - she wears one most of the time. Mrs. Charles Engelhard is another - she's set all her friends and relatives up for one.'

Actually, Halston's first caftan developed as a prosaic answer to a design problem a little over three years ago, soon after he went into business for himself. He was

Q-When did they start to cover the loose cushion of a chair with the same fabric on the top as on bottom?

A-We have asked several experts about this and no one is sure. Today cushions are reversible if the fabric is inexpensive Economy was probably the rule during the 17th and 18th centuries If you could afford it, you upholstered both sides of the seat cushion Examples dating to the 6th century are known.

Winterthur Museum at Wilming on, Del claims the first written ads for this type of reversible cushion dates to England in 1798 The ad implied that this was a common thing Few 18th-century chair seats with original fabric remain The answer is still a semi-mystery

Reed explained the potential of the "learning exchange program (LEX) to Lincoln Rotarians in a noon speech The program, initiated last fall, has alloyed some high school students to work sideby-side with National Guard personnel in an effort to introduce the youngsters to career options

With the encouragement of USOE, the project will be expanded into other Nebraska sites and three other states Minnesota, New Jersey and Tennessee

Should other cities, other states find themselves as well pleased with their projects as Lincoln and Nebraska apparently are over this first one, we may eventually find this pilot relationship between the schools and the National Guard developing into a universal practice in this country," Reed told the Rotarians

Reed was in Lincoln to attend a governor's conference on the LEX program. The conference participants include officials from the three other | states and a Washington delegation headed by Reed

Violence Kills Four In Northern Ireland

of violence in Northern Ireland claimed four victims Tuesday and the Irish Republican Army threatened to extend guerrilla action, to Ireland proper in retaliation for the jailing of underground leader Sean MacStiofain.

The three-year death toll in Ulster now stands at 644.

IRA commandos launched rocket attacks in various areas of the North. But the British army said it foiled another assault in Londonderry in which the guerrillas were planning to use a large sovietmade rocket for the first time.

A spokesman said troops eaptured a Russian-made focket launcher with a primed missile when they stopped a car on the fringe of the Creggan Estate, part of the IRA-ruled "Free Derry" before the army stormed it July

The army spokesman said the device was an RPG7, a fairly modern weapon not seen before in Northern Ireland. He gave no indication of how the guerrillas got it, but the IRA is known to have sought arms th. in Eastern Europe.

Rockets used by the commandos previously have been fired by launchers similar to the U.S. Army's bazooka.

Half Cup Of Water

Father Sean McManus, a Boman Catholic priest who visited him, said MacStiofain "had agreed to take half a cup of water every day . . . to save bloodshed, to save a civil

The priest added: "I personally hope this is the end of the hunger strike."

MacStiofain's wife Maire said he had not eaten anything. But she said he suffered a heart attack during the day and as a result had agreed to drink a cup of water.

The Irish government said only that the 44-year-old 1RA Reader had ended his thirst strike by taking an unspecified amount of tea. It did not mention food.

Father McManus told newsmen outside the Curragh camp hospital near Dublin that he whispered to a delirious MacStiofain: "If you die, then there is going to be serious bloodshed in the south of Ireland."

.The priest reported Mac-Stiofain mumbled again and ₫reland.

Given Oxygen

He said that when he entered MacStiofain's guarded room, the weakened and ashen-faced guerrilla was being given oxygen. "He was finding it desperately hard to breath." he said.

MacStiofain's 19-year-old daughter was crying hysterically beside her weakened father's bed. The guerrilla's wife sat sobbing in a chair.

Doctors said Tuesday that MacStiofain was not likely to live for more than a few days unless he either accepted sustenance or was force-fed. MacStiofain himself vowed he was sentenced when Saturday he would be dead by Friday unless he was freed.

In Dublin, Prime Minister Jack Lynch told Parliament that MacStiofain was being given "adequate treatment," but refused to say whether the Republican leader would be force-fed.

MacStiofain's arrest and conviction apparently set off the new violence in the Nor-

United Nations, N. Y. Pi == Vasir Arafat, head of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, has written UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldneim welcoming as long overdue the U.N debate on international terrorism

His letter, circulated as an official document of the General Assembly, said nothing about Palestinian guerrilla operations but accused Israel of pursuing "institutionalized terrorism" against the Arabs.

The letter ended with a liof alleged Jewish terror stracts. from 1941 through 1972, 1cluding Israeli military raissince the 1967 war.

Arafat's letter ended with a list of alleged Jewish terrorist acts from 1941 through 1972, inluding Israeli military raids since the 1967 war.

Arafat's letter was relaved to Waldheim by Ambassador Abdul Malek Ismail of North Yemen and was circulated as the assembly's legal committee concluded nearly three weeks of cebate on curbing terrorism.

Ninety-five of the t32 U.N. countries participated in the discussion, which produced three rival plans. Voting is expected next week.

The first plan was introduced by the United States, the second by Italy, Britain and seven other countries, and the third by Zambia, Algeria, Yugoslavia and four other nonaligned countries.

All condemn terror.sm and favor early ratification of pending treates against hijacking

The US plan neludes a proposed treaty for punishing or extraditing terrorists who involve outs de countries or innocent foreigners in their acts. It requests a diolomatic conference early next year to

Bormann Story Thought Try To Discredit Peron

Offic Neto Bork Times

Rome - Simon Wiesenthal, the researcher who helped trace Adolf Eichmann and other Nazi war criminals, said Tuesday that newspaper stories reporting that Martin Bormann was leading the life of a prosperous businessman in Latin America may have been circulated in an attempt to discredit former president Juan D. Peron of Argen-

"Either it's that, or the whole story is a lie from A to Z." Wiesenthal declared in telephone inerview from Vienna. "It may be a lie in both cases. I am very skep-

Wiesenthal conceded never theless that there was a "50-50 chance" that Bormann, who was Adolf Hitler's deputy, might still be alive and in hiding somewhere in Latin America.

With a chuckle, Wiesenthal said the author of the London Daily Express article on Bormann had called him from London, telling him that the secret service, and promising to come to Vienna next week to discuss the evidence

Wiesenthal said he had told Ladislas Fargo, the writer, that "if you have contacts with the Argentine secret service, you must also have been given Bormann's fingerprints. I have Bormann's fingerprints, and so do the West German authorities. We could establish within 48 hours whether your man is Bormann."

Farago Hedges Wiesenthal stated that Farago hedged on the question of fingerprints. Referring to the report that the presumed Bormann was carrying an Argentine passport, Wiesenthal remarked that "all Latin American authorities request fingerprints from passport applicants.

Wiesentahl suggested that the Argentine secret service may have leaked the report on Bormann in an effort to damage the prestige of Peron "because under Peron the Nazis were let into Argentina.

formation from the Argentine a branch of the armed forces, was not comparable in efficiency to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States or "even the West German Information Service," Wiesenthal said. "The Argentine service is about as reliable as the customs guards of Andorra." The tiny enclave of Andorra between Spain and France has a reputation as a smugglers' paradise.

Notion Rejected Wiesenthal rejected the notion that Bormann may be posing as a successful businessmanm "Borman wouldn't operate like Eichmann," Wiesenthal observed. Eichmann was a loner who had to work for a living. The Bormann case is altogether differentm There is a Bormann Wiesenthal explained Fund " that the fund had been set up by wealthy Nazis to help Bermann live comfortably in > "Argentina doesn't have such an interest" in rounding up Nazi war criminals, Wiesenthal said. "Such an interest just doesn't spring up overnight. If it does, it is politically motivated."

> Wiesenthal described the Daily Express account as a 'mixture of already known elements, slightly modified and new fantasies.

> The Vienna-based Wiesenthal Research Center, virtually a one-man operation with a small office in the garment district of the Austrian capital and a small secretarial staff, keeps a bulging Bormann file. The St. Paul Chamber Orchestra presented their initial for mal concert Tuesday evening in Kimball Hall on the UNL campus and a comparatively small audience was thoroughly enthralled by the performance.

These talented musicians are in residence at the university throughout the entire week. Besides playing two concerts they are also dividing into smaller playing ensembles, conducting coaching sessions on the performing instruments, presenting lecture per-formances of various chamber works, leading discussions on performance practices and holding open rehearsals for the orchestra.

The orchestra is comprised of twenty-two members who are thoroughly rehearsed and expertly led by the young conductor, Dennis Russel! Davies. There is no doubt that Mr. Davies' forte is in the direction of contemporary music because he is completely at ease with the immensely difficult rhythmic patterns that confront the players, as well as showing his skill in guiding the erchestra through the different tonal colors a contemporary composer conceives.

Mr. Davies is, nevertheless, equally competant in interpreting the standard works as witnessed by Tuesday evening's performance of works by Corelli and Mozart.

opening number, Corelli's Concerto Grosso in D major featured three members of the orchestra; Romauld Tecco violin and concertmaster, Hanley Daws, violin and Matthew Shubik, bassoon. From the start one becomes aware of the importance placed by the ensemble on perfect intonation and the necessary precision of ensemble playing.

The work, despite a minor

The string orchestra with Romauld Tecco as soloist next performed the Concerto Accademico by the early 20th century English composer, Ralph Vaughn Williams, Vaughn Williams is an excellent composer for this particular vehicle and Mr. Tecco and the orchestra were superb in realizing this composer's fine

A composition by the young Mexican composer, Max Lifchitz, opened the concert after the intermission with a work commissioned by the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra entitled "Roberta." Employing a reduced chamber orchestra it was by far the most challenging composition of the evening and clearly displayed the conductor's immense talents in leading the orchestra through a maze of difficult

The delicate balance and texture between sections are not attempted because of the reduced string section. Rather the delicate dynamics are realized and slower tempi can exist without danger to slovenly playing and one can hear the marvelous individual passages with a new enthusiasm

The orchestra will present an entirely different concert in Kimball Hall Thursday evening. Perhaps the empty seats will be filled after this evening's display of talent and

TIME TO RELAX AND ENJOY THE MUSIC

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln stretches out to enjoy the full sound of the performance Tuesday by members of the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra. The orchestra, spending the week in-residence on the campus, has devoted much of its time to demonstrations, lectures and ceaching sessions designed to take its music to the students where they are. The relaxed student is enjoying the sounds of a string quartet as it performed in the student union lounge. The members of the orchestra, divided into small ensembles, are appearing in residence halls on the campus and in public schools in Lincoln this week. On Thursday, orchestra members will spend the day coaching individual students, participating in lecture-performances and playing original student compositions. The full orchestra is also giving two public performances in Lincoln and one at Doane College in Crete. The week in residence is sponsored by the Minnesota Arts Council and the Nebraska Arts Council in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Arts. (Staff Photo by Harald Dreimanis)

Investigator Sniffing Trail Of Key Figures

(c) Washington Star-News Washington — The top in-vestigator for the Kennedy Subcommittee probing the Watergate affair has made a quick incursion into California subcommittee to try to pick up the trail of key figures linked with campaign sabotage charges in President Nixon's re-election

The apparent targets of the probe are Donald H. Segretti, the vanishing bachelor accused of being an undercover campaign spoiler, and Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal attorney, who according to one report furnished Segretti with funds.

James F. Flug, who is steering the investigation for tine Senate Judiciary subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure, headed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. D-Mass., refused to talk about his trip to Celifornia. But sources said Flug flew to Los Angeles a week ago, shortly after Segretti resurfaced. Segretti, a 31-year-old former government attorney, had disappeared when the sabotage uproar erupted before the election.

There was no indication that the Robinson home. Flug was successful in reaching either Segretti or Kalmbach, Both have declined to talk with newsmen.

Runaway Bus Bashes House

Lafayette, Ind. (UPI) Paul Robinson was awakened from a sound sleep by a loud crash. He walked upstairs and found a city bus parked in his living room.

Robinson, 19, said he was alone in the house, asleep in the basement when he heard a crash and "thought the whole place was collapsing" on him.

The city bus was parked at nearby Jefferson High School with its motor running. Driver Denzil McKinzie said he thought he put the bus into neutral before he got out. But police said the bus rolled-

The major topics of both meetings could be identical whether Jean Westwood, the hand-picked choice of defeated presidential candidate George McGovern, should remain as

"I would think the governors, governors group, just four days would have substantial in-their states on the national committee," Kelley said.

Several Democratic governors have been vocal in their opposition to Mrs. Westwood in of Sen. McGovern's landslide defeat.

Kelley confirmed his support for reinstating former party chairman Larry O'Brien if a vote is taken to unseat Mrs. Westwood at the Washington believed the governors would have more on their minds than manship.

He said he thought chief executives such as David Hall Oklahoma and Jimmy

Nominating Unit Meet Set

Omaha (A) - A meeting of the Juvenile Court Nominating Commission has been scheduled Dec. 20 to nominate candidates for Juvenile Court

The commission will submit two names to Gov. J. J. Ex-

Exon's relection will succeed Juvenile Coart Judge Seward Hart, who was voted out of office in the November 7 elec-

Nebraska Supreme Court Judge Lawrence Clinton said applications have been received from Omaha attornev George Kanuoff, John F. Kennedy College professor Gilbert Hueftle, Creighton University law professor Theodore Clements and Douglas County Chief Deputy Public Defender David Cullan.

Who's A Tiger?

Telecasting Co. and the newspaper Sankei commissioned a poll last year asking Americans to associate Japan with an animal. The results showed the fox was the most popular image. This year the poll was repeated and Americans now tend to associate the country with

The afternoon will be spent in actually "taking over" the respective offices to which they were elected from their in-

Wild West Show Ends Two-Month Tour Of Japan

Kagoshima, Japan (A) — The Buffalo Bill Wild West show from Nebraska ended a twomonth tour of Japan Tuesday, and Montie Montana Jr., leader of the show, described it as "quite successful."

The show, which included three Indians, arrived in Tokyo 29 to try to lure more Japanese tourists to Nebraska and other Western states. It visited 36 cities.

Montana said "everything went smoothly. We had enthusiastic crowds.

"We created a lot of good will," he added. "Tourists to Nebraska and other Western states will increase next year." He said members of his group will return to Tokyo Wednesday and will peform at several U.S. military bases before leaving Japan.

out of warm Mexico and when I stepped out of the airplane in San Francisco, baby, it was cold outside'

Says a leading Fashion man 'There is nothing more unattractive than to feel the back of a girl's bra while you are dancing with her ' Paris fashion engineers are still working on the backless bia. A problem as difficult as building a saddle without a cinch

- 4 And up and down her some "Were His Majesty's ships in
- line * And over her right kidney 'Was a bird's eve view of

Sydney

Pucci was the fashion man who put the knock on the bra that hooks in back. He called on fashion architects to come up with a bra that was all front

(I don't mean to compare ladies to horses but it does seem silly to expect a horse to keep a saddle on unless you tie it around him )

Answay it will be a curious thing when boys and girls get thisaway to dancing together again Arms around Cheek to cheek,

It will be a great surprise to Claude when he gets a grip on the chick's hookless back He runs a hand up and down, frisking her for hidden straps 'Uh — have you forgotten something doll'

CARMICHAEL

Forgotten what, Claude?

This is a sticker. Depending naturally on how well he knows the lady. With these solo dances. I would guess nobody knows anybody very well. You hardly know who is the partner. Claude is in a touchy situation He remembers long ago when boys and girls danced together there was something Some object like a picket fence You used it as a guide postwhere to put your hand

Just talking to myself " says Claude He should go home and ask his mother

Well nothing impossible in this age of miracles A slide rule A little stick on tape or maybe we could use iron-on tape Iron the bra right on

What really occurs to me is how many young men today have even felt the back of a bra while dancing? With today's dances, a man never lays a hand on the mouse he is dancing with It is all solo She dances over thataway He dances over

She could be wearing full field pack on her back He would never know the difference

Ladies' clothing always required a great deal of thought -if you like to think about those things For example how is it that a lady can hook herself into the backed bra but cannot for the life of her zip herself up

Fortunately for most girls love being what it is - she has a zipperman around the house It is one of the reasons

she got married
She says 'Would you zip me up the back?"

Her ever-loving pulls on the And hook it at the top

she savs

Ah, now we come to the heart of the matter. There is a hook on this model - $500, marked down to a bargain $399 99 But there is nothing to hook it to

Just hook it into that place where it's supposed to hook says the lady

What do vou mean, what place? he asks

Well sir it turns out there is a wispy piece of thread that the itsy-bitsy hook hooks into

This $500 creation This masterpiece of Parisian art Designers and dressmakers slaved over it Reported by the best fashion magazine Photographed with important models in exotic suroundings

All this is finally held together by a piece of engineering with less imagination than a child's string cat's cradle

Rodgers Named Top Player Of The Year

New Haven, Conn. 49 - University of Nebraska wide receiver Johnny Rodgers one of the leading candidates for the Heisman Trophy, the symbol for the nation's top football player. Tuesday received yet another

The Walter Camp Football Foundation chose Rodgers as its Player of the

His selection as the year's top player by the foundation was announced Tuesday after he was joined by two other Cornhuskers, defensive end Willie Harper and middle guard Rich Glover, on the Walter Camp all-America

This was the second consecutive year that Rodgers had been named to the team along with Glover and Harper.

Rodgers' selection as player of the year shouldn't come as too much of a surprise to football coaches who have been forced to re-vamp defenses in attempts to stop the elusive back.

Kansas coach Don Fambrough once remarked that Rodgers was possibly the best football player at his position that he had

And after Rodgers helped to decimate the Kansas State Wildcats, coach Vince Gibson was heard to remark: "Thank God this is his last year. When he (Rodgers) leaves. I'm going to lead the cheers."

Known for his ability to break open almost any game, Rodgers was the key figure in Nebraska's 35-31 victory over Oklahoma last year after a brilliant 72-yard punt return for a touchdown that left Sooner players sprawled on the turf after trying to tackle

Despite the defenses devised by coaches to stop Rodgers, the 5-9, 173-pound all-American managed to re-write the Big Eight and Nebraska record books and managed to work his way into the NCAA records for pass receiving, touchdowns, punt returns and all-purpose running.

The Camp team will be honored at a reception Jan. 27 at Yale University.

UPI Chooses Glover As Loop's Top Defender

. . . NU STANDOUT EARNS 19 OF 20 VOTES

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) - Rich Glover, Nebraska's 234-pound middle guard who made tackles from sideline to sideline and gave opposing coaches nightmares for two was voted United Press International's Big Eight Defensive Player of the Year Tuesday. Glover missed by only one vote being unanimous on the 20-man panel of Midlands sports writers and broadcasters. He polled 19 votes, while Oklahoma tackle Derland Moore received the other.

Glover was a unanimous choice on UPI's all-Big Eight team, which was announced Monday.

"He's one guy who's never let anything written or said about him affect his play, coach Bob Devaney said throughout the year. "He's been so steady and consistent we almost take him for granted."

A 6-1 senior from Jersey City, N.J., Glover was an instant success as a junior after being switched from defensive tackle in spring drills. Throughout his career, he was always at his best in Nebraska's big games.

Glover was neutralized for the most part in his last regular-season game against Oklahoma, but he was double-teamed for the most part by all-conference center Tom Brahaney and guard Ken Jones.

probable

"Our offensive line played very well, but so did Glover," praised Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks.

In fact, Oklahoma's famed wishbone running attack was held in check for the most part and only when the Sooners had success passing did they come from behind for the 17-14 victory.
In 1971, when Nebraska won the national championship with a 13-0 record. Glover made 102 tackles, including 15 behind the line for 77 yards in losses.

Asked about Glover's strength, Kansas center Mike McDaniel testified, "I don't know how strong he is. I never touched him." This season, Glover was even more impressive. He made 100 tackles, 52 unassisted, and opposing teams pretty much ran away from him. Glover was considered in the Big Eight as the best middle guard ever to play in the league and there are many who think he's the best ever at his position.

Devaney said it all about Rich Glover when he commented, "he's never had a bad game for us. It's just been a matter of whether he's outstanding or super.'

UTEP Fires Track Coach

El Paso, Tex. (A) -Highly successful track coach Wayne Vandenberg has been fired, University of Texas-El Paso athletic efficials said Tuesday, ior "flagrant disregard for constituted university authority."

In six years with the Miners' the 30-year-old coach produced teams that won three Western Athletic Conference outdoor track championships, three indoor WAC crowns and a second place in the indoor NCAA championships. His teams have been rated among the top four in the nation for the past three years.

Athletic department officials said Vandenburg was fired because of his alleged "flagrant disregard for constituted university authority: repeated demonstration of lack of fiscal responsibility, and failure to act in the best inof the university terest program after being so advised.

The Trojans are healthy enough, McKay said. But the key against Notre Dame's multiple offense is intelligent -defense.

"If we are able to adjust on defense-out defense is still young and hasn't seen that many offensive sets-then we can play very good defense. And if we do we'll have an excellent chance to win, They'll see more sets that they haven't played against as collegians.

Since losing 51-0 in 1966— when Notre Dame wan the national championship-USC has won three and there have been two ties in 43-game series, which Notre Dame leads 25-14-4.

For the seventh time in the last nine years, a national championship may be riding on the outcome. USC, 19-0, is is No. 10.

Football Out At Highlands

Albuquerque, N.M. (A) --New Mexico Highlands University 3,466 regents voted 2-1 Tuesday to drop intercollegiate football at the Las Vegas, N.M. school, only a few years ago one of consistently top-ranked the small college teams in the nation.

The decision came after some sharp exchanges between regents and four black football players, plus another black student. Several blacks argued that the move would destroy their livelihood.

The meeting followed problems involving the 22 black football players on the school's 46-member squad this season. The black players didn't show up for a practice session in the final week of the season, leading to cancellation of the final game and resignation of the coaches.

Moses Ineligible For Final Tilts

Ames, Iowa (P) — Iowa State University sophomore Jerry Moses was declared scholastically ineligible Tuesday to play the last two Cyclone football games.

ISU ends its regular season Saturday night at San Diego State, then faces Georgia Tech in the Liberty Bowl Dec.

Majors drilled the team for only an hour Tuesday and said it will be non-contact the rest of the week.

"We plan on going to San Diego rested and mentally sharp," Majors said, San Diego State is 9-1.

Referring to the ineligibility of Moses, Majors said it is "a very unfortunate thing for both Jerry and the team. We certainly hope he can come back next season. I feel he has a bright future at Iowa State."

Moses started ISU's first game of the season against Colorado State but had a knee injury and missed the next two games. He started the last two games at split end and in limited playing time gained 209 yards rushing and caught seven passes for 74 yards.

Cities Receive Foreman To Face Olympic Talk

NEW YORK (AP) - Four United States cities expressing interest in staging the 1976 Winter Olympics have been contacted by the U.S. Olympic Committee, it was disclosed

The cities advised by mail of International Olympic Committee regulations and and return by Dec. 26 are Lake Placid. N.Y.; North Lake any of Tahoe, Calif.; South Lake among Tahoe, Calif., and Salt Lake class.

Arthur G. Lentz, executive director of the USOC, said there was no guarantee that a U.S. city would get the Games which Denver rejected in a referendum in the Nov. 7 general elections.

The IOC awards Olympic Games to cities, not countries. and other cities around the world have been contacted by their national Olympic comsafety experts said Monday the wreck of the City of New Orleans which killed II and injured 163 others last year was caused by a locked locomotive wheel which slid almost 40 miles before derailing at a switch at Tonti.

Locked Engine Wheel Cause Of Train Wreck

The report by the National Transportation Safety Board said a wheel slip warning indicator which could have prevented the crash was inoperative at the time. The reason, it said, was a four-day series of coincidental events marked by inadequate repair and testing procedures, inadequate federal regulations and violation of a federal safety rule requiring wheel slip warning devices.

The Amtrak train, being operated by the Illinois Central Railroad, was running about 90 miles an hour when it jumped the track June 10,1971. 67-Page Report

The board said in a 67-page report that the series of events that led to the wreck began four days earlier when the train crew, which operated between Chicago and New Orleans, noted that the No. 2 engine in the locomotive was not putting out electricity in the traction motors on the wheels, which actually propel the engine.

The crew reported the defect, and in New Orleans the decision was made to return the unit to Chicago for repairs. Also in New Orleans, the seemingly routine decision was made to lock the reverse lever on the unit in the "neutral" position. But with the lever in neutran, no power could be delivered from the diesel engine to the traction motors. And the particular type wheel used on tendoce and testing.

Washington (UPI) - Federal this locomotive does not operate if power is not reparied in Chicago, no one Seward, Verle, home; returned the reverse lever to daughters, / Mrs. James its proper position. So the locomotive left Chicago coupled to three others and 14 cars — the City of New Orleans — June 10 with no operating wheel slip indicator on one wheel.

Tragic Coincidence

The board's report said that as the train rolled south from Chicago, an unrelated but tragically ceincidental event occurred. A plate in the traction motor on that parsicular wheel worked loose, causing a motor armature to shift, placing undue stress on the motor bearings.

The bearings overheated and caused the wheel to lock, probably while the train was stopped at Effingham, 39.8 miles north of the crash site, the board said.

With no warning that the wheel was slipping, the train sped south, wearing a flat groove I II 16 inches deep and creating a "false flange" on the outside of the wheel that spread the rails apart as the train roared through a switch at Tonti.

The board absolved the train crew, which it said could have prevented the accident had it known the wheel was slipping. It also concluded operation of the unit without the wheel slip indicator violated federal rules, but that the rules themselves were vague. And it recommended stronger federal regulations regarding locomotive main-
